Population in Tennessee Counties and Cities

July 2012

Bill Haslam, Governor

TENNESSEE

Department of Labor and Workforce Development

The 2010 Tennessee Census population was 6,346,105. This number represents an actual count of the state population. According to estimates published by the Bureau of the Census, the 2011 population of Tennessee was 6,403,353, up 57,248 (0.9 percent) from the 2010 Census. (See the table on Page 2.)

The Population Division of the Census Bureau produces estimates of state, county, and city populations each July 1. The estimation methodology has remained unchanged for more than two decades.

The most recent decennial census data from April 1, 2010, were used. The updated population estimates include births, deaths, internal migration, and international migration that have occurred from the census date to the date of the population estimate. For the net migration component, the bureau relies on the annual extract of tax returns to develop net migration rates for the population under age 65 for each county.

In Tennessee

The largest county actual population increases in the past year were in Davidson County (up 8,794), Shelby County (up 7,444), Rutherford County (up 6,317), Williamson County (up 5,378), Knox County (up 4,703), Hamilton County (up 4,392), and Montgomery County (up 4,288). These are the largest six counties with a total population increase of 41,316. While these counties comprise 46.6 percent of the state population they account for 72.7 percent of last years' growth.

During the past year, Williamson County had the largest percentage increase (up 2.94 percent), followed by Montgomery County (up 2.49 percent), Rutherford County (up 2.41 percent), and Wilson County (up 2.30 percent).

Almost one-half of all Tennessee counties (45 counties) had a population decline last year; however, of those declines 16 were fewer than 50 persons. Hardeman County had the largest population decrease, declining by 419 persons from last year (down 1.54 percent). The next largest decline was 343 people in Roane County. These 45 counties had a decline of 4,663 persons from the Census population.

In Tennessee Cities

There are 385 incorporated cities in Tennessee. Due to limited space only the largest have been included on Page 2. There are 55 cities with greater than 10,000 inhabitants. Of those that are smaller, 288 have fewer than 5,000 people, and 148 have fewer than 1,000 people. There are 25 incorporated cities with fewer than 100 inhabitants.

Of the more-than-10,000 group, the cities with the highest percent growth last year are Spring Hill (2.95 percent), Franklin (2.93 percent), Brentwood (2.92 percent), Clarksville (2.48 percent), La Vergne (2.46 percent), and Smyrna (2.43 percent). The cities with the largest decline are Brownsville (-1.7 percent), Elizabethton (-0.37 percent), Dyersburg (-0.37 percent), and Martin (-0.1 percent).

When looking at the highest percentage growth cities last year (more than 2.0 percent growth) nine of the top 10 cities surround Nashville. The other city was Kingsport (2.28 percent). Of the seven cities with the greatest percentage decline, six are in west Tennessee. The other west Tennessee cities are Union City, Jackson, and Paris. The non-west Tennessee city from this group was Elizabethton (-0.37 percent).

The cities with the largest actual growth are Nashville/Davidson County (8,422 persons), Memphis (5,161 persons), Clarksville (3,302 persons), Murfreesboro (2,572 persons), Chattanooga (2,462 persons), Knoxville (1,887 persons), and Franklin (1,830 persons). In the last 10 years the Tennessee population growth was 606,971 (10.7 percent).
